

7 DIE, 40 INJURED IN RAIL WRECK

ATTACHMENT OF STRIKERS' FUNDS STANDS

Judge F. E. Grosshans Overrules Motion To Dismiss.

N. B. O. P. WINS

Court will Assign $700 Action for Hearing.

Municipal Judge Frank E. Grosshans today overruled a motion to dismiss attachment proceeding instituted by the National Brotherhood of Operative Potters to recover $700 from local union No. 131, the Rainbow club and A. D. Mosser, Albert Woodward, A. J. Grafton, Fletcher Williams and Emmett Green representing striking clay shop helpers in potteries at East Liverpool, Chester and Newell, W. Va.

Judge Grosshans, who heard the testimony Saturday when 20 witnesses were called, said the case would be assigned for a hearing on its merits.

Defense Attorney G. J. Clark filed an exception to the ruling and the case will be kept open for 30 days, during which the case may be appealed to a higher court. Attorney Blaine H. Cochran represented the Brotherhood, for which the principal witnesses were President James M. Duffy and Secretary-Treasurer John D. McGilivray.

Court Rules for N. B. O. P.

The court held the "Rainbow club" was composed of five members of union No. 131, three of whom were officials; that they executed to themselves checks for $140 each; that union No. 131 owed the Brotherhood $449.68 for eight months per capita tax and $42.33 for supplies and rent, or a total of $492.01; and that it was unlawful to surrender the union's charter as long as there were three or more members willing to remain, for the reason that under the statute of the state three or more may organize or maintain in a corporate capacity.

Judge Grosshans said in part: "It is conceded and established by the evidence that the defendant, Arthur Mosser, was president of Local Union No. 131, that the defendant Albert Woodward was treasurer, and that the defendant A. J. Grafton was financial secretary, and that as such president and treasurer their duty as officers of said Local Union No. 131 was to administer the business of said union in accordance with the by-laws.

"So that in the consideration of this case the court finds that the three officers named herein were three of the members of the Rainbow club and as such officers, especially the treasurer and president, signed and executed to themselves as well as to the other three members of said club checks for $140 each, drawn upon the funds of local union No. 131.

Union's Constitution Quoted

"The constitution of union No. 131 provides:

"That should the aforesaid union withdraw or be dissolved, abandoned, or forfeit this charter, all property, monies, books and papers shall become the property of the National Brotherhood of Operative Potters."

"Section two provides that special meetings may be called by the president or on the urgent request of seven members in good standing and that all special meetings must be confined strictly to the business specified in the call for the same.

"There is no evidence before the court that notice was given to all the members of said special meeting or the purpose for which said meeting was called.

"It was shown by the evidence of plaintiff by four or more individuals who testified that they were members of local union No. 131 and in good standing and that they desired to remain as members of said union."

POLICE AID IS DEAD

Police Captain H. Mason Conley, 55, for 19 years a member of the East Liverpool department, died early today in his home at 925 Vine street, after a week's illness. He was captain for 12 years.

CAPT. CONLEY, AGED 55, DIES

Police Aid Succumbs To Heart Disease At Home.

Police Captain H. Mason Conley, 55, died today at 12:50 a. m. from heart disease in his home at 925 Vine street, after more than a week's illness. He had been off duty since Monday, Feb. 19.

He had been a member of the East Liverpool police department for 19 years. He was appointed policeman by Mayor V. A. Schroll on March 8, 1915, and named captain on Jan. 1, 1922, by Mayor J. S. Wilson.

Mr. Conley, who was born at Woodfield, a son of the late James Conley, worked in the oil fields near Sistersville, W. Va., for many years before moving to Toronto in 1901. He was employed by the Great Western Sower Pipe company at Toronto and later was connected with the Hope Natural Gas company at New Cumberland, W. Va.

From 1906 to 1911 he was a member of the police force in Toronto. He then moved to East Liverpool to become an inspector for the Steubenville, East Liverpool and Beaver Valley Traction company.

He was a member of the Fraternal Order of Eagles, Fraternal Order of Police and First Church of Christ of East Liverpool and Junior Order of United American Mechanics of Toronto.

Besides his widow, Mrs. Cora Conley, he leaves two sons, Clifford and Harley, of East Liverpool; two daughters, Miss Georgia Conley at home, and Mrs. Esther Straight of Toronto; two brothers, Elmer of Chester and Wylie Conley of Porters Falls, W. Va., and two sisters, Mrs. Sadie Keck of Paden City, W. Va., and Mrs. James Liston of Akron.

Funeral services will be held in the home Thursday at 3:30 p. m., in charge of Rev. Paul E. Secrest, pastor of the First Methodist Episcopal church. Burial will be made in Riverview cemetery.

Friends are requested to call at the home Wednesday afternoon and night.

ARMY BAND TO PLAY NUMBER

Military Musical Organization Will Present Local High School Selection In Wednesday Program.

William J. Stannard, director of the United States Army band, today advised Paul Thompson, drum major of the East Liverpool high school band, that the army musicians would play "Slavonic Rhapsody" by Carl Friedmann in its broadcast over the NBC network from Washington, D. C., Wednesday from 11:30 a. m. to 12 noon. This program will be best available to radio fans in the East Liverpool district from KDKA, Pittsburgh.

"Slavonic Rhapsody" is the required number which East Liverpool and other Class A high school bands will be required to play at the fifth Ohio Valley Band tournament which will be held at Bellaire on Friday, April 27. One of the other two numbers which the local band will also play at the Bellaire contest will be presented by the army band at a later concert, Stannard said.

BOY COASTER IS KILLED AS CITY SHIVERS

John Johnston, 13, is Fatally Injured By Auto.

15 OHIO DEATHS

Flood is Feared if Rain Accompanies Thaw.

John Johnston, 13, son of Mr. and Mrs. Barney Johnston of 1025 Hazel street, died today at 12:15 a. m. in the City hospital from a crushed chest, other internal injuries and shock, received when his sled collided with an automobile in West Ninth street, Monday at 7:45 p. m., while he was coasting.

The boy succumbed as the city shivered in a cold wave which sent the mercury down to 8 below zero, official readings showed.

Police said the fatality occurred when the youth, coasting down May street, struck the wheels of a sedan driven west in West Ninth street by Mrs. H. G. Foutts of Glenmoor. The boy was removed to the hospital by Mrs. Foutts's son, Robert, who was a passenger in the automobile.

Authorities indicated that the accident was unavoidable. Coroner E. R. Sturgis of Wellsville is expected to conduct an inquest today.

Victim's Funeral Friday

Young Johnston, who was born in Chester, W. Va., was a pupil in the eighth grade at Washington school here and a member of the Salvation Army and the orchestra. Besides his parents, he leaves one brother, William, and two sisters, Anna Dolores and Beulah Mae, all at home.

Funeral services will be held Friday at 2 p. m., in charge of Field Major Joseph Hughes at the Salvation Army chapel. Burial will be made in Locust Hill cemetery, near Chester.

15 Other Deaths in Ohio

The Associated Press reported 15 other deaths in Ohio, attributed directly or indirectly to the storm.

The fatal crash of a national guard flier on the ice off the lake shore at Lorain, an asphyxiation at Springfield, and the death of a Steubenville man from heart disease and cold were the latest casualties.

As at Hamilton, where the snowfall was six inches, deepest since 1917, almost the entire state was beset by drifts. Several sections stopped rural schools.

Fumes from a small gas stove caused the death of Clarence Daugherty, 54, in the bedroom of his home at Springfield Monday night. James McCune, 65, was found frozen in the yard of his home in Steubenville. Heart disease brought on his death, the coroner said. The national guard flier killed near Lorain was Lieut. Albert J. Harmon, who was making an unofficial flight to Detroit.

Temperatures which hovered around the zero mark last night were expected to rise as much as 15 degrees with fairer weather, and even better prospects for a break in the prolonged cold snap were held out by weather officials for tomorrow.

River Flood is Feared

Rivermen in the Allegheny and Monongahela valleys expressed fear that the district may suffer one of the worst floods in more than 25 years in the event of a sudden thaw, accompanied by rain. The ground throughout the Allegheny and Monongahela watersheds is covered with an average depth of eight inches of snow, they said, while the rivers are gorged with ice along almost their entire lengths.

Official temperature readings here today were eight below zero at the Swaney airport in Madison.

FLIER KILLED BAILING OUT

Blinding Snow Squall Takes Life of Guardsman.

By The Associated Press. LORAIN, O., Feb. 27.—A blinding snow squall along the Lake Erie shore has taken the life of Lieut. Albert J. Harmon, of the 107th observation squadron, Michigan national guard.

Twenty minutes after he left Cleveland airport for Detroit on an unofficial flight late yesterday a heavy snow storm closed in on him. He attempted to bail out from a low altitude, struck the foot-thick lake ice about 600 feet from shore, and was injured fatally when his parachute failed to function.

His plane struck the ice near him and was destroyed by fire. Lieut. Harmon was on his way back to Detroit after bringing C. E. F. Clark, a Detroit school teacher and a colonel in the infantry reserve, to Cleveland for the National Education Association convention.

Harmon was not carrying air mail, and had no connection with the army mail service.

Coast guardsmen and firemen were called, and took the flier to a hospital, where he was pronounced dead.

VETERAN DIES IN COLUMBIANA

William Halverstadt, 90, Last G. A. R. Survivor in Village Succumbs Monday Afternoon.

William Halverstadt, 90, Columbianna village's last surviving G. A. R. member and postmaster of the village during the administration of President William McKinley, died Monday at 5:30 p. m. at his home, North Main street, Columbianna.

Mr. Halverstadt served three years in the Union army during the Civil war, being a member of Company H, 115th Ohio Volunteer Infantry. He was a member of the Columbianna Methodist Episcopal church.

He was born in Salem township on July 23, 1843, and spent practically all his life in Columbianna county. He was a son of David and Elizabeth Halverstadt, pioneer residents of Columbianna county.

He leaves his widow, Mrs. Phoebe Halverstadt; two sons, Dr. Charles Halverstadt of Terryville, Pa., and Maurice O. Halverstadt of Buffalo; one daughter, Mrs. May L. Lloyd of Youngstown and four grandchildren.

Funeral services will be held in the home Thursday at 2:30 p. m., in charge of Rev. David Lamb, pastor of the Methodist Episcopal church. Benjamin Firestone post No. 290, American Legion, and the Columbianna D. A. R. organization, will aid in the services. Burial will be made in Columbianna cemetery.

$55,000,000 For War Veterans is Added

WASHINGTON, Feb. 27.—With administration forces apparently submitting, the senate today added another estimated annual $55,000,000 for World War veterans to the independent offices supply bill.

Without opposition of a record vote, it adopted the Stetson-McCarroll amendment restoring to the rolls 29,000 veterans whose disabilities were presumed to be of service origin but who were taken off by the economy law of a year ago.

Death Reveals Secret Of Bucket Shop Head

By The Associated Press. NEW YORK, Feb. 27.—Death divulged the secret of William F. McGee, whose name made the headlines in the heyday of the bucket shop a decade ago.

Penniless and broken, McGee died in a hospital last night, under an assumed name. It was not until police got to checking finger prints early today that he was identified as the man who went to prison with Edward M. Fuller back in 1927 as the result of a flamboyant bucket shop trial.

McGee, although he must have suspected he was dying of atrophy of the liver, kept the secret of his identity to the last. Police records said he was wanted in Chicago in a "marriage racket" and also in "Waukegan, Ill."

Friends are said to have sent an appeal to Chicago, asking his former wife, Louise Groves McGee, for funds to bury him.

50 CALLED IN OUSTER FIGHT

McLaughlin Case to Open Wednesday At 1 P. M.

About 50 witnesses are expected to be called in the civil service hearing which will be conducted in the municipal courtroom, Wednesday at 1 p. m. In the case of Martin T. McLaughlin who was removed from the office of street commissioner here Feb. 3, by Mayor O. Earl Greenawalt.

Fifteen or 20 witnesses will be summoned by Solicitor Raymond S. Buzzard, who will prosecute the case. Attorneys Blaine H. Cochran and S. W. Crawford will defend McLaughlin, who demanded the hearing after denying the mayor's allegations of inefficiency, incompetency, neglect of duty, misfeasance, malfeasance and nonfeasance in office.

While the civil service commission, of which W. J. Barlow is chairman, ruled that spectators would be limited to the seating capacity, Chief of Police Hugh J. McDermott said today that only the principals and other persons having business there would be permitted in the courtroom.

Examinations for police and firemen will be conducted tonight at 7:30 in the high school building in East Fourth street by the civil service board. Each applicant has been requested to provide himself with pencils, while the commission will furnish other supplies.

MRS. PICKERING, 80, SUCCUMBS

West Second Street Woman, Resident Here for 50 Years, Dies Monday.

Mrs. Elizabeth Pickering, 80, died Monday at 4:30 p. m. in her home at 225 West Second street after two years' illness.

Mrs. Pickering, who was born in England, had lived here 59 years. She was a member of the Methodist Protestant church.

She leaves two sons, George and Herbert Pickering of East Liverpool, and a sister, Mrs. Polly Dunniff of Burslem, England.

Funeral services will be held in the home Thursday at 2 p. m., in charge of Rev. J. F. Dimit, pastor of the Methodist Protestant church. Burial will be made in Riverview cemetery.

Friends are asked to call at the home Wednesday afternoon and night.

NRA CRITICS BEATEN TO GUN

Johnson Unfolds His Program for Code Revisions.

By The Associated Press. WASHINGTON, Feb. 27.—Hugh S. Johnson beat NRA's assembled critics to the gun today by suddenly unfolding a 12 point program for revising existing codes.

Before the hundreds invited to complain could voice a single criticism, the NRA administrator announced a wide code revision would be effected, if possible, by sweeping presidential mandate.

Individual industries, Johnson told the opening session of his "field day for criticism," will be allowed modifications only if justification can be shown in public hearings.

Code revision, he added, will be followed by a bigger and better blue eagle compliance campaign—"Call it what you will," he said—to make the emblem indispensable to all business.

"We are going on as we have been," he said in a paragraph aimed at NRA's enemies, "these meetings are the first move in a closing up of our ranks for a new forward movement by NRA."

"Chance for circumstance may stop it, but you are not going to stop it or even make it falter."

With a bang, the bluff and hard-talking administrator threw open sessions which will run in five simultaneous performances, day and night until everybody who wants to present objections to the current program or complain of the codes has had at least 15 minutes to do it in.

His talk was aimed not only at the immediate audience but over their heads to the country itself. Into a microphone he challenged enemies, denied that NRA had fallen short of its promises, and spoke a confident claim that the industrial program will march on.

DR. HENRY KING, OBERLIN, DIES

Nationally-known Educator, Former College President, Welfare Worker Succumbs.

By The Associated Press. OBERLIN, O., Feb. 27.—Dr. Henry Churchill King, nationally known educator and president of Oberlin college for 24 years, died at his home here this morning. Dr. King retired as president of Oberlin in 1927.

He was the author of numerous religious and social works and was active in missionary work. During the World War he was director of religious work for the Y. M. C. A. in France.

Pennsylvania Train Plunges from Tracks Near Pittsburgh

Engineer and Fireman are Missing; Railroad Officials Discard Theory of Frozen Switch As Cause—F. R. Dravo, Millionaire Contractor, is Among Victims of Tragedy.

By The Associated Press. PITTSBURGH, Feb. 27.—Almost 12 hours after an Akron-Pittsburgh train plunged from the Pennsylvania railroad tracks, workers today removed the last body of seven persons who lost their lives in the wreck. More than 25 of the 40 injured are in hospitals.

The engineer and fireman are missing and searchers believe them to be dead in the wreckage. They are W. M. Shaw, of New Castle, Pa., engineer, and O. C. Douthitt, of Youngstown, O. Railroad officials who discarded an earlier theory of a frozen switch being responsible, said they did not know what caused the tragedy.

Next to last to be removed was the body of F. R. Dravo, millionaire contracting company head who had boarded the train only 39 minutes before on a trip to Washington, D. C.

The other identified dead were: DAVID A. DUCHARME, 50, of Ansonia, Conn., and Akron, O. CLARENCE J. MAYER, 45, of Ingram, Pa., a meat market owner, MRS. W. MILLER WARDROP, of Pittsburgh, wife of a Pennsylvania railroad official.

THOMAS JEFFREY, Negro, of Youngstown, Ohio. Bodies of a Negro and white woman are unidentified.

About 70 Passengers Aboard

Railroad officials said about 70 passengers were in the train. Two Pullman cars were to have been transferred to a New York express and few of these passengers were hurt. Most of the uninjured continued east on later trains.

Wrecking crews, aided by a huge crane, worked through the night and into the day cleaning up the tangled mass of steel, iron and brick, looking for any additional bodies.

The train—"1638"—was ten minutes behind time when it jumped the tracks at 9:32 last night. The engine ploughed down a 20-foot embankment. The five steel cars, disconnected, drove on, wrecking a two-story signal tower and knocking down part of a three-story brick building.

Cause is a Mystery.

"The cause is still a mystery," one of the 10 executives who viewed the wreck said while watching a crane pulling away at the tangled mass of steel.

He pointed out that Engineer W. M. Shaw of New Castle, Pa., and Fireman O. C. Douthitt of Youngstown, Ohio, had disappeared.

"We couldn't find them in the cab," he said. "Of course they might be buried beneath the engine. We have heard also that they got out all right."

Disconnected from their pilot after it plunged down the embankment, the cars were shoved past by the momentum of their speed, estimated by some passengers to be between 25 and 40 miles an hour.

The combination express-smoker dived off an embankment 400 feet past the engine, resting its front down on the ground and its rear on the tracks. The diner remained upright. The day coach knocked down the signal tower.

Two sleepers turned over, one above the engine and tender, the other against a three-story building, knocking down large piles of bricks.

Survivors Tell of Tragedy

Dazed by the tragedy, the survivors of the ill-fated "No. 1638," told their stories of the plunging steel giants from hospital cots.

Men, paled by the nearness of death, and women, hysterically holding nondescript pieces of clothing to bleeding wounds, trudged through knee-deep snow drifts to shelter after the wreck, they said.

Only three minutes more—and it wouldn't have happened. The New York bound train would have completed its run into the union station about 9:35.

Mrs. Mary Connell, of Youngstown, buyer for a department store, told how a man's calm voice quieted the passengers after the terrific impact that threw people all the

ROUTE NO. 7 TO BE BEAUTIFIED

"Road of Remembrance" Will Be Provided Near East Liverpool According to State Plans.

By The Associated Press. COLUMBUS, O., Feb. 27.—Plans for two highway beautification projects on State Route 7, Ohio river road, in northeastern Ohio have been submitted to the state for approval. It is proposed that federal funds be used on the jobs.

One project starts at the extreme northern end of the route and runs southward a little less than five miles. The second is for two miles north of East Liverpool.

Dallas Dupre, landscaping engineer for the state highway department, said he was hopeful of landscaping at least the two jobs already suggested. Vines and shrubs will be planted, if the federal government approves the appropriations, for the purpose of beautifying the roadway and eliminating soil erosion in the cuts. Grass will be sown on the berms.

Considerable agitation has been underway for some time for beautifying most of the highway which has been set aside as the "road of remembrance" of Ohio's soldier dead.

Fares Refunded

Best Remedy for Cough Is Easily Mixed at Home

No Coughing! No Work! Real Saving!

You'll never know how quickly a stubborn cough can be conquered, until you try this famous recipe. It is used in more homes than any other cough remedy, because it gives more prompt, positive relief. It's no trouble at all to mix and costs but a trifle.

Into a pint bottle, pour 2 1/2 ounces of Pinex; then add granulated sugar syrup to make a full pint. Syrup is easily made with 2 cups of sugar and one cup of water, stirred a few moments until dissolved. No cooking needed. This gives you four times as much cough medicine for your money, and it's a purer, better remedy. It never spoils, and tastes fine.

Instantly you feel its penetrating effect. It loosens the germ-laden phlegm, clears the air passages, and soothes and heals the inflamed membranes. This three-fold action explains why it brings such quick relief in severe coughs.

Pinex is a highly concentrated compound of Norway Pine, used for generations for its healing effect on throat membranes. It is guaranteed to give prompt relief or money refunded.

'NEW DEAL' HOME SITE DEDICATED

Jobless Take Over Federal Homestead Property at Arthurdale Near Morgantown, W. Va.

The first of the government's "new deal" community homes for jobless and needy families was opened at Arthurdale, near Morgantown, W. Va., Monday. The Reedsville experimental community, as it is officially known, was accepted by the homesteaders in a ceremony in which conveyance of property from the government to the group was made through Dr. F. L. Wilson, head of the Federal Sub-sistence Homesteaders corporation.

The experimental community was covered with nearly two feet of snow and in many places drifts were shoulder high.

The Reedsville community is one of about 20, which are being developed by the Homestead corporation. Being the first completed, it will serve as a model for the others. The homes are furnished in early American style, with furniture made entirely by workmen of the district.

A factory will be constructed in the community soon, under the direction of F. M. Williams, fourth assistant postmaster general. Its output will include a variety of articles, but will not compete with other outside industries, officials say. It will provide work for those living in the community.

SCHENK LEAVES $173,039 ESTATE

The late Otto Schenk, Wheeling banker, banker and business man, who gave a million dollars to relatives six years ago, and whose philanthropies totaled several hundred thousand dollars, left an estate of only $173,039.33, it was revealed today at the Ohio county clerk's office in Wheeling.

Schenk was a heavy contributor to Capital University at Columbus and built the campus chapel there. He also presented Wheeling park with a zoo and was foremost in contributions to charities.

Quarters Transferred To Firestone Building in Lisbon.

Offices of County Auditor John H. Irwin, County Treasurer John C. Littly, Prosecuting Attorney George L. Lafferty and that of the county commissioners were removed today from the Lisbon court house to the Firestone building at the southwest corner of South Beaver street and Lincoln Way.

This removal also included the office of the tax division, which is a part of the auditor's office, the dog license and automobile license bureaus.

The offices of Auditor Irwin and Treasurer Littly will be located on the street floor formerly occupied by the Binsley Clothing company. Vacant apartment suites on the second floor, entrance to which is on South Beaver street will be occupied by all other division offices.

This removal has resulted in three shifts of CWA workers being employed in the reconstruction of the court house. These men, including 30 carpenters and other workers are working eight-hour shifts.

Weather has done little to hold back the reconstruction program.

Shades Of The Past

Baseball has created many a hero, but few John McGraws. For three decades he was an integral part of baseball—a maker of baseball heroes. His value to the national sport must be reckoned in terms of what he added to it, not in terms of what he got back from it.

Some of his ideas about baseball may have been wrong. But they worked in his time, and they still are good enough to be the patterns of many a manager who was lying in his cradle when McGraw was indulging himself in outbursts of temper. Those outbursts probably did more to make him one of the great figures of the big leagues than any other single thing in his makeup.

They gave him a precious distinction—color, the thing which distinguishes a Babe Ruth from a Jimmy Fox, making one priceless and the other merely valuable. They gave him as manager a tremendous advantage over the men under him. He was the great John J. McGraw and his word was law.

While it regained law, the New York Giants never had reason to doubt the wisdom of retaining McGraw year after year while other managers came and went. He was dictatorial, sometimes unreasonable and always assertive, but he had something behind his bluster that counted. He knew baseball, he knew baseball players and he understood the fundamentals of providing entertainment. It is significant that he was interested deeply in the theater. He grasped the relation between entertainment on a stage and entertainment on a baseball diamond.

Judge Kenesaw Mountain Landis has summed up McGraw's qualities in two sentences: John McGraw was something more than the winner of 10 pennants and many world series. He was emblematic of the fire and dash that belong to the national game. Shades of the past troop up now to carry him away. He helped to make life more pleasant for his generation.

Police Captain H. Mason Conley

East Liverpool today mourned the passing of Police Captain H. Mason Conley, who succumbed to a heart attack at his home after a week's illness.

During 12 of the 19 years he served as a member of the department, Mr. Conley had been second in command of the law enforcement branch of the municipal government, and he filled the place with credit to himself and the city.

Captain Conley, who was appointed a patrolman by Mayor V. A. Schreiber, on March 8, 1915, and promoted to the higher post on January 1, 1922, by Mayor J. S. Wilson, was a fearless officer. Affable, courteous and with duty uppermost in his mind, he was admired and respected by the community which he served faithfully.

The sympathy of his fellow citizens, to whom he was familiarly known as "Mase," extended to his family in their bereavement.

A Year Later

Realization that the United States was close to a point where a climax in its economic sickness was inevitable dates back roughly to this period in February a year ago. It is interesting to try to reconstruct the circumstances then. What happened?

The depression was acute as February came to a close in 1933. Business was at a standstill. Unemployment had reached staggering proportions. Buying power virtually had disappeared. Low wages and hoarding had paralyzed trade.

A long succession of bank failures was approaching a still unforeseen climax in which the whole banking structure was to collapse. People were strangely oblivious of what was to come, however. Their misery, already past bearing, made it hard for them to believe that even worse was yet to come, in store.

President-elect Roosevelt inspired more hope than confidence. Whatever he represents today, he was only the victorious candidate a year ago. People did not know how much stock to put in his new deal. They feared he would find it easier to talk than to act. Few were prepared for the kind of administration Franklin D. Roosevelt was prepared to give.

If one accomplishment of his first year were to be selected from all others for its importance, it might well be establishment of strong, national leadership. In February, 1933, the United States was drifting. In February, 1934, it was proceeding with a plan. Its feet are on the ground. It is facing realities and challenging them. The people's mood is totally unlike that which prevailed a year ago.

They were conscious of many things wrong then, but they were apathetic. There seemed to be nothing to do but await the inevitable and hope it wouldn't be so bad as they feared it would. Their attitude was caused in large part by the political paralysis that had crept over the government following Mr. Hoover's defeat. The existing president had lost his mandate; the mandate of his successor couldn't be exercised for a few more days. It was a period of uncertainty as hazardous and risky as any the United States has experienced.

It is well to recall it before the further passage of time makes memory more dim than it is now. Franklin D. Roosevelt knew applause less often these days. He knows he will be submitted to the same scathing criticism in the future that saddened the lives of some of his predecessors. His achievements will be belittled and his failures exaggerated. But neither time nor his enemies should be allowed to rob him of one of the greatest glories a man can experience under democracy—the undisputed privilege of exercising leadership. Whatever his failures may be, he gathered up the loose ends of the people's wrecked morale and tied them into a strong pattern of confidence during his first year in office.

Surprise

Henry Wallace, the secretary of agriculture, couldn't have surprised 10 of the country's largest meat packing houses more by ordering them to suspend operations than he did by filing complaints against them for restraint of trade, control of prices and other monopolistic practices. It is obvious from their protests that the packers are deeply grieved and surprised over the action.

Under NRA they and other managers of big business were encouraged to believe that a lot of the silly anti-trust business was going to be forgotten. For the first time in their lives they could look into a future unclouded by threats of action against what were to them merely logical arrangements to promote mutually beneficial cooperation. It was the sop which persuaded many of them to stand the pain of the national recovery act.

It is with good cause, therefore, if they choose to believe they have been hoodwinked into a false sense of security. What they have done or haven't done is a matter for the courts to determine. What the government says they have done, however, is only what the scheme for national recovery has given legal recognition within the year. They have cooperated for their common good, is the charge. What is wrong with that?

Nothing, perhaps, except that Secretary Wallace evidently feels that the interests of his special wards, the farmers, were affected adversely by their particular kind of cooperation. Here is the old specter of the middleman again—the actopod monster that squats between producer and consumer extracting toll from both for his services. The check the farmer gets is too small, and the price the consumer pays is too high. Secretary Wallace says he intends to do something about it.

It will be an important battle, if he presses it. Once the meat packers were so powerful the government dared not touch them. Now, the secretary of agriculture files complaint against them for actions which seem to have been condoned in a general sense by suspension of the anti-trust laws. One wonders whether Mr. Wallace expects to sustain his charges, or whether he has served his principal purpose by the mere act of making them.

Reply

During the several years that the Carnegie Foundation for the Advancement of Teaching has been blistering the hides of officials responsible for making a big business of amateur football, the public has been more interested in the attack than in the defense. It was enough to know that investigators charged certain colleges and universities with exploitation of amateur athletes for commercial gain. Relatively few people, outside the wide circles holding loyal supporters of various institutions under fire, were willing to believe that anything could be said in reply.

The Carnegie Foundation's report this year criticized the universities of Notre Dame and Southern California for serving "commercial purposes" in their football policies. To the charge, Rev. Fr. John F. O'Hara, acting president of Notre Dame, has made a strong reply. It is easy to imagine that similar replies, had they been made on the Carnegie Foundation's first attack several years ago, might have withered at the outset what has been allowed to develop into powerful publicity for an otherwise inconspicuous institution.

Rev. Fr. O'Hara strikes directly at the assumption that emphasis on football in an educational institution is improper because it robs education of emphasis. "That has not been our experience at Notre Dame," he asserts, and then makes this convincing promise: "We wish to reiterate at this time that if we ever find it to be the case we will drop football without a moment's hesitation."

The rest of his reply, though convincing, is not so closely related with the forgotten point of the controversy over amateur football. That point is the failure of critics to prove that any harm has been done to educational processes or to individuals by policies which have made collegiate football a major division in the big business of entertainment. The Carnegie Foundation for Advancement of Teaching has confused its avowed purpose slightly with that of a foundation for the retardment of athletics. Rev. Fr. O'Hara's rebuttal to some of its recent statements may help to put it back on the right track.

Motoring Through Georgia
If anybody says life in the South is not active, contradict him. The writer having been "whizzing" through these states, Georgia and South Carolina, several days, knows. Herbert Porter, manager of W. R. Hearst's Atlanta Georgian, who makes Le-gree look like a Salvation Army lassie, says:

"We make a late start. Come to the downtown theater about eight, talk to the Atlanta Georgian carrier boys and men, tell them they are real merchants, gaining invaluable experience through contact with the most intelligent ladies and gentlemen of Georgia."

And South Carolina

You do that, and a Lincoln car drags you 125 miles to Georgia's Blue Ridge Mountains and the Tallulah Falls School for mountain girls and boys. There is a speech to be made there, many interesting buildings to be visited, three ranges of hills to be climbed.

Says Legree:
"Then you must hurry, because we are late now for Clemson. I am afraid you will miss the cadets' parade."

The Lincoln comes close to "hitting 100," but you do miss the parade, but not the interesting dinner, and certainly not the speech.

You meet the learned Dr. E. W. Sikes, head of Clemson college, where 1,200 young cadets who are taught agriculture, or engineering, live in barracks under military discipline. They wear uniforms and are trained to fight in defense of their country, if it should be necessary.

The young men all like it. Dr. Sikes, who graduated from Johns Hopkins in 1886, says: "We have no pacifists in South Carolina. We don't raise any."

Calhoun's Plantation

Historical country surrounds Clemson college. Attached to the college is the old home of John C. Calhoun, and what once was his plantation is now Clemson's 500-acre farm.

Calhoun's son-in-law, Thomas G. Clemson, left all he had to found the college. He had fought in the French revolution, liked Europe and got his father-in-law to make him charge d'affaires of the American legation in Belgium.

When Albert Brisbane first went to Europe in 1828, one hundred and five years ago, Calhoun gave him a letter to all American diplomatic representatives in Europe.

That proved to be useful, when in 1830 Albert Brisbane went on horseback from Berlin to Constantinople via Athens. No airplane, railroad train or even stage coach for that trip. Travel has changed.

From Clemson college 18 miles to the neighboring city of Anderson. There, a meeting in the high school auditorium and another speech are waiting.

B. R. Kidd, of Anderson, South Carolina, takes you on that trip, while Wilton E. Hall, able young publisher, tells of places passed in the dark.

Two miles to the west stood the "Treaty Oak." Beneath it Gen. Andrew Pickens, in 1785, "negotiated a treaty with the Cherokee Indians for the acquisition of 'up country,' a good acquisition.

Not much more than 100 years ago the ridge at Galesville, whence water flows down one side to the Gulf of Mexico, and down the other side to the Atlantic, was Indian country.

New York Day By Day

NEW YORK, Feb. 27.—Not in many years has the metropolis so set aside its anxieties to frolic as it has this winter. Everywhere a rustle of lingerie, the shine of silk, the crept crackle of stiff white shirts. And other gallantries of life from the top drawer.

The popular figures of the day are those who can, like the buxom Elsa Maxwell, whip life into a sudden froth. Dressmaking ateliers have driven the sheriffs from the doorsteps. And in the sudden White Tie Era the dinner jacket has become extinct.

Almost every big ballroom is filled nightly. Smart dining rooms are an opening chapter from an Oppenheim. And a season that once diminished to six stage plays now has 34 with theatrical ticket agencies tripling their staffs. There are sundry explanations.

Some say repeal. Others the buoyancy of a safe bound out of the depression. While the more lugubrious chant it is the well known fiddling while another Rome burns and point to the excess of hysterical gaiety preceding France's plunge to new disaster. The final fling!

Charles Laughton, deserting the cinema at the peak of his American career, is filling London's "Old Vic" in a repertoire of Shakespeare, acting a month for what Hollywood paid him a day. New York's nearest approach to "Old Vic" was the Civic Repertory, a sort of compromise between a theater and a club. "Old Vic" has preserved audience affection through every vicissitude. When bombs were dropping around Waterloo station, crowds at "Old Vic" were cheering "Macbeth."

I once went to "Old Vic" with Waterson Rothacker. Above us curved the gallery, packed with men, women and children who had paid five pence to hear Aida. They were artisans, laborers and "clarks" and their wives. It was an eddy of the submerged snatching desperately for something fine and soothing higher up.

The most auspicious theatrical flop of the season was George Abbot's self appearance in "John Brown." In one despairing gap it opened and closed the same night. Abbot is a sterling actor, the play was magnificent mounted and cast. But again proved the play's the thing.

One of New York's bachelors, whose life has been spent in globe trots, recently settled down to a Sutton Place apartment. In showing a friend through his new home, he pointed to an enormous acre-wide bed. "That," he said, "is to get even with all the Pullman and steamer berths."

Harry Silvey and I turned into the Bowery shortly after midnight. The free flops were filled to capacity and the overflow bivouacked in doorways or sprawled along the curbs near embers of scattered gutter fires, all huddled together for warmth. There was a flash-back to a vivid etching in a few little volume of Missouri childhood; troops rolled in their cloaks beside dead fires, sleeping before battle. Only their battle was Tomorrows!

Behind The News In Washington And Wall Street

By PAUL MALLON

WASHINGTON, Feb. 27.—The brain trust has been superseded on the inside here by the Young Anthony advocates.

Some irreverently call them "the hot dog boys" because most of them are proteges of Felix Frankfurter, the eminent reform philosopher of the Harvard Law School.

The title is not a misnomer because these boys are red hot. They are all lawyers much smarter than the average Wall Street lawyer and congressman.

They burn the youthful zeal to remake the world and have done very well so far.

You never hear of them, because they are shy about publicity and keep in the background but if you look behind most of the major policies you will find their finger prints.

They are real powers behind the throne.

Stock Job

The latest spectacular inside job they did was on the stock exchange reform bill. It is called the Fletcher-Rayburn bill, but neither Senator Fletcher nor Representative Rayburn ever saw it before it was given to them by the Anthony advocates.

The smart boys worked on it for weeks hiding before one of their number submitted copies to Mr. Roosevelt. Their handiwork was so clever that all the lawyers in Wall Street have been sitting up nights ever since, trying to figure out a way to tear it down.

They made it appear to be very innocent and legally logical. No shrewd bill was ever proposed. You have to read between the lines to get its hidden importance. It says "on the one hand" and then "on the other" but between the two you find Wall Street is made into a government reservation.

Securities

An even better example of their cleverness is the securities act. That is the law which requires all corporations to give the federal trade commission a full financial accounting of new financing and threatens corporation officers with jail if they make a mistake.

Big and little business has been screaming against that law for months now and have not been able to make a dent in it. The Anthony advocates drew it, and one of their number is administering it. Their job has stood the test of time—except for one item in it.

An amendment will be put through congress before adjournment taking off the jail sentence for innocent mistakes.

Roll

The Young Anthony advocates who were in on that job include: Ben Cohen (F.W.A.), Tom Corcoran (R.F.C.), Max Lowenthal (Pecora committee), and Jim Landis (federal trade commission). All are liberal trade commissioners. All are about 35 to 40 years old and learned the practical side of law fighting Wall Street in New York.

Others prominent in the group are Herman Oliphant (Morgenthau's legal adviser), Jerome Frank (A.A.A.), and Nathan Margold (solicitor of the interior department). It was Oliphant who discovered the legal loophole on which the gold price policy first was based.

There are a dozen or so others hidden in the NRA, CWA and elsewhere. They have several common meeting places at the home of friends and at a house where a few of them are living together.

If they set out to repeal the law of gravity legally, they could probably do it.

Jobs

The FWA has been missing on a few cylinders lately. Its continued ineffectiveness can be at least partially attributed to the unusually cold weather which has held up all kinds of construction work in most sections of the country.

The figures show $103,000,000 of FWA contracts were let in January. During the first half of February the amount shrank to $35,000,000, and included in that figure was some CWA work.

The whole building industry suffered similarly. Total contracts filed in December were $207,000,000; January $191,000,000 and February (two weeks) $59,000,000.

The big public works employment drive will begin when the ground softens (about April 1).

Limbs

Some of Mr. Roosevelt's advisers have been taking him out on rather perilous tree limbs.

Certain insiders believe the Anthony advocates did just that in going so far on the stock market bill, but that measure will probably be modified considerably and passed without serious consequences.

It will not be so easy to get out of the air mail cancellation move. Postmaster General Farley took him out on that one.

Likewise Mr. Roosevelt is still rocking in the editorial wind stirred up when he took Gen. John's advice and lambasted the newspaper publishers.

However, Mr. Roosevelt seems to like limbs and he has not had any sawed off behind him yet.

One of the consumers' counsel for the fish industries code is a Mr. Haddock. It provides you can not keep industrial influence out of the NRA.

By JAMES McMULLIN

NEW YORK, Feb. 27.—New York's anti-New Deal G. H. Q. is feeling perked up these days, thank you.

Its confidential scouts announce word of a national reaction against air mail contract cancellation than any other administration move to date. Plenty of public sentiment still backs the President, but the committee on hostilities can report progress.

A. G. H. Q. has a couple more tricks up its sleeve. It expects to cash in heavily on farm disaffection traceable to the Bankhead cotton quota plan. Also it hopes to get somewhere with a publicity campaign against direct government credits to business. You'll be encouraged to call that either Fascism or Communism—whichever you dislike the more.

The biggest break of all is in sight when the President asks for authority to negotiate these tariff agreements single-handed. That's when the tom-toms will beat in earnest. The tactics will be a flank attack on public opinion through inspired news stories and comments—not a direct assault on congress or the President.

Hours

Local insiders credit General Johnson with cagey strategy in his opposition to the 36-hour week bill now before congress. The net result is expected to be general industrial acceptance of the 36-hour week.

The general, you see, will have shown himself the staunch friend of the industrialists by defending them against "destructive" legislation. Therefore many of them will follow his recommendation—to be made a little later—and reduce hours from 40 to 36 to save themselves from the worse alternative. Of course there will be conscientious objectors, but the pressure of public opinion is counted on to force them into line.

The need for a shorter work week to take up unemployment slack is vividly shown in New York state factory employment figures for January. They dropped more than seasonally below December and amount still to only 65 per cent of the theoretical normal. That leaves a broad gap to cover, especially with the forthcoming decline in government spending. Experts agree distribution of work and shorter hours is the only answer.

Utilities

Local utility men are convinced that Governor Lehman is acting as the President's stalking horse with his drastic program for New York state utilities.

Those with properties in other states are as vitally concerned about what happens at Albany as Niagara Hudson and Consolidated Gas themselves. They regard the Lehman policies—if they go through successfully—as a prelude to like action everywhere else.

Hence the exceptionally open and desperate fight against the Lehman measures. Every political wire inside and outside is being pulled to block them, but political experts here say they still have more than a faint chance of passage. Many leading New York state Republicans are opposed, but don't dare make a party issue of it.

Salaries

Utility executives are wondering how soon the government axe is going to fall on their plump and pleasant salaries. They expect to be forced to the scale-down path as railway and bank heads were before them.

American Telephone—which has ducked most utility restrictions—rings in heavily on this picture. Walter Gifford's $206,000 just about tops in American industry today. Altogether A. T. & T. has not less than 433 executives getting more than $10,000 a year—many of them in posts of minor responsibility. Utility executive salaries have been more or less carved up in the past by the practice of splitting any one officer's remuneration among several different companies. Officers often benefited also from directors' fees paid by subsidiaries. But the government is on to this now.

No legislation was necessary to get results from the railroads and banks and probably none will be here when Washington really tackles the question. Executives in other branches of industry are fearful that in due course the earthquake will reach them too.

Insurance

Competition for new business among New York life insurance companies is so bitter nowadays that agents are inducing prospects to exchange old radios and automobiles for an insurance policy.

In one recent case the insurance company closed a deal by allowing a larger amount for an old Ford than the seller could have obtained under the rigid second-hand car code. That took care of the initial payment on the policy and the next three premiums.

Salesmen

The provision in the investment bankers' code that no partner or employee of a firm can visit or telephone a customer or prospect at his home without his written permission in advance is a joke so far as most security salesmen's contacts are concerned. But if strictly enforced it will eliminate one of the worst abuses of the business—selling junk to widows and orphans by high-pressure methods. If it even does that much it will accomplish something worthwhile.

SI delights

Makers of coarse textiles hope the pound reaches $5.20. It would give them a sweet break in South American markets. Crucible Steel is reported as running three shifts a day. You can expect an amendment to the Fletcher-Rayburn bill to make stock market margins flexible between 40 and 70 per cent.

ODD FACTS

For more than 600 years a family has occupied a cottage near Gillingham in Cumberland, England. They were there when the Battle of Bannockburn was fought, and what is still more remarkable, the kitchen fire of this cottage has never once been allowed to go out for 200 years.

A new high-speed film camera takes 2,000 pictures a second (7,200,000 an hour) on top of which it automatically records the time. At this rate a splinter from a cracked electric bulb is seen falling like a snowflake, while the effect of a flashlight resembles a slowly darkened stage.

The Sunlit Road

"As dew to the blooms, and but to the bee, as scent to the rose, are these memories to me."

TOM T. JONES

A copy of the original plat of East Liverpool, owned and made for his father, the late Christian Metch, by the late A. W. Scott, is now in the possession of his son, J. C. Metch, of West Fourth street. It shows streets, alleys and lots as outlined in 1840. A section fronting the Ohio river and touching First and Second streets is noted near what is now a plot north and a bit west of the present wharf. It was listed as the "Public Ferry." Farther to the west was noted a plot marked "pottery." This is the site of the then James Bennett pottery which had been erected the preceding year. Off Fifth street, at its western end, is a section marked "cemetery." This was the early burial ground of the community.

The plat shows the presence of "West street," and reveals it as extending from what is now the entrance to the Newell bridge. It ran parallel to the thoroughfare 60 feet in width. There was a West alley also noted, 20 feet wide, east of the street of the same name.

Even then an alley was named Persimmon alley. It doubtless received its name initially from the fact that some persimmon trees were noted at the time on or near it. First street, as noted on the plat, was then a thoroughfare that was 80 feet in width. The plat indicates that in the beginning what is now Broadway was known as Railroad street. It also was 80 feet in width. It is believed that it was initially intended to have been the beginning of a roadway from the Ohio river that was to extend to the court house in Warren, Trumbull county.

The eastern section of Fourth street was noted on it as Penn street, and came to be known as Robinson street before taking on the name of East Fourth street. What is now Drury lane was on this plat listed as Carpenter's alley. The alley between Fifth and Sixth streets was then known as Cemetery alley. The lots for the most part were 130 by 60 feet in size. The lots were not numbered above Fourth street, although outlines of them had been made on Fifth, Sixth and Seventh streets.

Managed Three Mills

Christian Metch, who passed away in East Liverpool in 1911 at the age of 81, once managed three flour mills at the same time. He was considered one of the leading millers of eastern Ohio. As a result he sold his products in carload lots to Pittsburgh, and many other places in the country.

One of nine children, born and reared in Hesseigheim, Wurtemberg, Germany, he served two years after concluding school as a miller's apprentice in Germany. He worked at his trade there before coming to the United States. He came to America in 1853, worked initially on the Panhandle section of the Pennsylvania railway, before renting a mill in Westmoreland county, Pa.

He came to Columbiana county in 1862 when he purchased the mill at Cannons Mill. This operated until 1871. Then he obtained the former Solomon Frederick mill which James Wilson then owned. It was located on the plot noted on the plat of East Liverpool as the "Public Ferry." On it he sold all of his holdings to the Pennsylvania railway following the destruction of this mill by fire. He changed its name to the Crockery City mill.

For 29 years, until its destruction in 1900, he operated this mill. For nineteen of these years he also conducted a mill at Alma, O. In 1890 he purchased the Bunting and company mill in Wellsville. These three he operated together for a time. He finally sold the Wellsville mill.

He, after the destruction of his First street mill, purchased a warehouse on Peach alley, south of Fourth street. This structure was formerly been the Jumbo skating rink. His son, J. C. Metch, he conducted his business. Mr. Metch built the residence in Fourth street, north of this warehouse in which he lived during his final years.

Served on City Council

He was president and one of the founders of the Peoples Building & Savings company. He also at one time headed the Park Land company here. He was a township trustee for six years and spent many years on the city council. He was a trustee of the water works and greatly aided the initial building of the water works here.

He became connected with the official board of the First Methodist church in 1873. For years he was president of the board of stewards. His service on the city council was for the years 1876, 1877, 1878, 1879 and probably 1880. His service in the first five of these years were during the administration of Mayor M. H. Fouts. The late A. H. Clark was then also clerk of the council.

His colleagues on the 1876 council were Richard Thomas, Samuel Cartwright, W. S. George, J. K. Farmer and Jesse Cro

GOLD CONTRACTS
NOT UNCHANGED

Roosevelt Monetary Plans Does Not Invalidate Agreements Franklin County Jurist Rules.

By The Associated Press.
COLUMBUS, O., Feb. 27.—The debtors' happy vision of reduced bills through dollar devaluation was dimmed by a court ruling here today.

In a decision believed to be the first of its kind in the United States, Common Pleas Judge John R. King, of Franklin county held that the gold embargo invoked by congress and President Roosevelt does not invalidate lawful contracts calling for payment in gold. Judge King's decision was given in a foreclosure suit. The action was based on a note calling for payment "in gold coin of the United States of America of the present standard of weight and fitness." Under Judge King's ruling Theodore and Edna Fredas, co-makers of the note would have to pay about 41 per cent more in present day dollars. They contended that payment in gold is prohibited and would make them criminals, but Judge King held that the gold act neither expressly nor by inference invalidates contracts lawfully entered into providing for payment in gold.

STOCKS SHOW
LITTLE CHANGE

Prices Irregular in New York Market Today.

By The Associated Press.
NEW YORK, Feb. 27.—Stocks jogged quietly along a narrow trail in the early trading today. Prices were a trifle irregular but all divisions remained featureless. Communication shares were a bit easier.

Norfolk & Western, ex dividend, lost three points on a light transfer. American Telephone and Western Union dipped major fractions while Consolidated Gas, Chrysler and Allied Chemical were a shade lower. Shares ruling unchanged to fractions higher included U. S. Steel, United Aircraft, Douglas, Sears Roebuck, New York Central, General Motors, American Tobacco B, International Nickel and Union Carbide. Call money renewed at 1 per cent.

In addition to cheering estimates of growing steel production, industrial observers were further heartened by the reports of leading railroads for January which disclosed that the majority more than tripled their net operating income compared with the same month last year and quadrupled it in comparison with January, 1932.

Followers of the rail stocks have expressed disappointment that this group has consistently lagged behind other share categories.

Columbiana

Mrs. John Robinson entertained a group of friends at a luncheon Friday at her home on Fairfield avenue, for the benefit of the Methodist Episcopal Guild.

Mrs. Jerry Shontz received members of the Women's Home Missionary society at her home in North Elm street, recently. Mrs. T. B. Hyland presided during the business meeting and Mrs. G. G. Patchen led the devotionals. Papers on missionary work were presented by Mrs. L. J. Garrard and Mrs. John Coyle. A social hour was concluded with the serving of lunch, with appointments in keeping with Washington's birthday.

The Faith, Home and Charity class of Grace Reformed church, met at the home of Miss Dorothy Halverstadt Friday night. Mrs. Arthur Myers and Mrs. William Sponseller are the associate hostesses and Miss Dorothy Clendenning, Wilma Knopp and Alta Royer composed the entertainment committee.

"England" was the topic for consideration Wednesday night when the Sorosis club met at the home of Mrs. C. A. Richardson. The program was as follows: Reading, Mrs. Wick Fry; "England and the Gold Standard," Mrs. T. H. Hyland; "Industrial England," Miss Mollie Buzard; "The English Royal Family," Mrs. Stewart Orr; "The Dole System," Miss Elizabeth Flickinger. Famous English characters were named in response to roll call.

Mrs. Edith Hall of McComb and Mrs. Robert Watkins were guests. The next meeting will be held on March 7, at the home of Mrs. C. W. Griswold, at which time New England will be the subject for discussion.

Miss Louise Bowles received a group of friends at her home on Middle street Thursday night. Bridge games were in play at three tables after which a lunch was served by the hostess' mother, Mrs. E. A. Bowles. The affair was given prior to Miss Bowles' departure for Meadville, Pa., where she will enter the city hospital for a nurses' training course. Another farewell courtesy was given Friday night by Miss Dorothy Chamberlain at her home in Salem street.

The Sunday night service at the Presbyterian church, beginning at 7:30, will be in charge of the choir, which will present the following program:

Solo, chorus, "The Earth Is the Lord's," choir; "Beautiful City," men's quartet; trio, "Seek Ye the Lord," Mesdames C. D. Strickler, Virginia Felger, R. E. Weaver; solo, "He That Dwelleth in the Secret Place of the Most High," Miss Margaret Stewart; solo, "Oh, Love That Will Not Let Me Go," Harry Yates; duet, "Dear to the Heart of the Shepherd," Mrs. Ralph Irons and Mrs. Robert Esterly; solo, "An Evening Prayer," R. J. Barrow.

At the recent meeting of Columbiana village council three resolutions were passed. The first authorized the board of public affairs to make application for additional CWA funds to complete the new water mains now under construction. The second directed the construction of a new sewer line from West Salem street to the disposal plant. The third changed the salary of one truck driver from 40 to 50 cents per hour but combined his duties as driver and mechanic.

Mayor C. J. Hart announced the appointment of Isaac Culp as a member of the cemetery board. The other members are James Orr and Charles E. Keller. Solicitor W. O. Wallace reported that he had information that Lisbon street would be improved early this spring, the work to be done by the state. This street is part of state highway No. 164.

Mrs. Virginia Felger received the Saturday Night Bridge club at her home, South Main street. After the games a lunch was served by the hostess.

Mr. and Mrs. Vernon Johnston are the parents of a daughter, born Thursday.

Mr. and Mrs. John Anglemeyer of New Buffalo were guests Saturday of Mrs. Louis Deemer.

Mrs. Virginia Felger was the guest of Beaver Falls relatives Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. George Griffith were in Youngstown Saturday on business.

Mr. and Mrs. Wick Fry visited with Carrollton relatives Sunday. Elba Wilhelm, Perry Kyser and Willard Mather attended a banquet at Akron Thursday.

The Good Cheer club of the Lutheran church will meet Tuesday at 8 p. m.

Tuesday at 6:15 p. m. Workers' conference of the Grace Reformed church will hold a coverdish supper.

LIQUOR STORE IN FIFTH ST.

State Control Department Tentatively Approves Property Owned By Mabel S. Brookes.

By The Associated Press.
COLUMBUS, O., Feb. 27.—Eighty-two sites for state liquor stores had been approved tentatively by the state liquor control department today.

This number was reached with tentative approval of sites in 24 cities and towns late Monday. The first of 187 stores to be operated in the state will be opened during March.

The properties approved yesterday included: East Liverpool, Mabel S. Brookes, 111 West Fifth street.

DRIVES INTO SUBWAY

PHILADELPHIA—Imagine the surprise of James Benney when upon opening a window of his automobile he found himself in a subway station. His vision obscured by ice on the windshield, Benney had followed the street car tracks which at 29th street leave the surface, cross a bridge over the Schuylkill river and go into the subway. Traffic was held up 42 minutes while Benney got out.

REFUSES SEWER FUNDS

WASHINGTON COURTHOUSE, O., Feb. 27.—The Public Works administration has declined to finance a $155,000 sanitary sewer project here on the ground the plan for financing is not sound. The city has until March 31 to ask for a rehearing.

ASSESSMENTS NECESSARY

NEW PHILADELPHIA, O., Feb. 27.—With the possibility of a general assessment against all counties in the district eliminated, the Muskingum watershed conservancy court again will be asked to approve the $34,500,000 flood control project of the district, Robert N. Wilkin, attorney for the district said.

The court composed of 16 common pleas judges, recently declined to approve the district's contract with the public works administration on the ground it might be impossible to borrow $500,000 from the government on warrants without making the general assessment against the counties.

REV. PITINI AT CHESTER

Free Methodists Open Series of Revival Meetings.

"The Gospel means 'good news,'" Rev. Paul Pitini of Rochester, Pa. evangelist, declared Monday night in a sermon at the First Free Methodist church in Second street, Chester, where he is conducting a revival campaign.

The meetings, which started Sunday night, will continue until Sunday night, March 18, with preaching each night, except Saturdays, and twice on Sundays. Special music will be presented during the campaign. Rev. Pitini will be assisted by Rev. G. S. Pugh, the pastor.

Rev. Pitini's subject Monday night was "Christian Joy." He said in part:

"The genius of Christianity is joy. No system of thought or religion has so extensively exploited the possibility of the practice and power of joy as has that of Christ. The paintings and word pictures of Christ handed to us as our inheritance of tradition, reveal that men have built a caricature of God. 'Christ did experience sorrow, but we must remember that when He wept, it was over Jerusalem and the sins of others. His own personality was one of infinite happiness and joy. Christ not only has a joy, but His desire is that the same joy should be in us. This does away forever with the idea of a gloomy Christianity.'"

Smiths Ferry

Mrs. Mary Casey and daughter, Loretta, spent Saturday and Sunday in Canton, visiting her mother, Mrs. D. J. Quinn, who is ill. Leewayne Hamilton and Kenneth Miller were recent visitors in Cleveland.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Troupe spent Wednesday in East Palestine. Friel Smith is visiting in Waynesburg over the week-end.

NEWELL PUPILS GET FREE MEALS

Fifty-five to Sixty Undernourished Children Fed Daily at Fourth Street School.

Free lunches are being provided daily at noon to 55 or 60 undernourished children in the Fourth street school at Newell through CWA funds, Principal Ernest John said today. In addition to these, a number of children buy their lunches at the CWA kitchen, which has been established in the school.

The kitchen is in charge of Mrs. C. A. Statler, who is assisted by Mrs. Jean Quick. The lunches are served in the school lunch room, which has been equipped with additional tables and chairs since the work was started. Children receiving the lunches were determined through examinations, conducted by County Health Doctor T. E. Ca to and his assistants of New Cumberland.

Similar lunch projects have been established at Chester, New Cumberland, Weirton and Hollidays Cove.

NEWELL SCOUTS MEET FRIDAY

Boys Will Plan Distribution of Clothing, Collected for Needy Last Saturday.

Plans for distribution of the clothing, collected by members of Newell Boy Scout troop No. 29 in a house-to-house canvass of Newell last Saturday, will be discussed at the weekly meeting of the troop at the Fourth street school Friday at 7:30 p. m. The clothing will be distributed among the needy as it is required, Scoutmaster Ernest John said.

The weekly session of troop patrol leaders and scoutmasters will be held at the school Wednesday at 4:30 p. m., in charge of Scoutmaster John.

GOETTSMAN JOB TO BE FILLED

Beaver County Commissioner will be Announced Soon.

The vacancy in the Beaver board of county commissioners, caused by the death of Walter M. Goettman of Brighton township, Democratic member, will be filled by Judge Frank E. Reader this week.

The court indicated the position would go to a regular member of the Democratic party. The law requires the job to go to one who voted for the deceased at the last general election. The Democratic county committee will make a recommendation to the court.

Among those mentioned for the post are Attorneys Samuel B. Wilson, Henry H. Wilson and Thomas M. Buchanan of Beaver; Colonel James P. Leaf of Rochester, and W. A. Freed of Homewood, Mrs. Jane Anderson Goettman, wife of the late commissioner, is also a possibility.

THE PREVAILING PATTERN

LOVELY BLOUSES A NECESSITY THIS SEASON PATTERNS 1590 and 1515 BY ANNE ADAMS

You'll want lots of blouses in your wardrobe this season. They're so very much "in," and they give you so much variety for such an amazingly little expenditure. The top one of these two sketched, is perhaps loveliest in a one-tone silk crepe of your most becoming color. The bottom one, which, incidentally, is simple ultra as to smartness, with that yoke and curved shoulder effect, is particularly nice in a small print.

Pattern 1590 is available in sizes 14, 16, 18, 20, 22, 24, 26, 28, 30, 32, 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44. Size 16 takes 1 1/2 yards 29 inch fabric.

Pattern 1515 is available in sizes 14, 16, 18, 20, 22, 24, 26, 28, 30, 32, 34, 36, 38, 40, 42. Size 16 takes 1 1/2 yards 29 inch fabric. Illustrated step-by-step sewing instructions included.

Send FIFTEEN CENTS (15c) in coins or stamps (coins preferred) for this Anne Adams pattern. Write plainly name, address and style number. BE SURE TO STATE SIZE.

THE NEW SPRING 1934 EDITION OF THE ANNE ADAMS PATTERN BOOK features all the best Spring styles for adults and children. Send for your copy of this interesting, helpful book and be chic this Spring. PRICE OF BOOK FIFTEEN CENTS. BOOK AND PATTERN TOGETHER, TWENTY-FIVE CENTS.

Address orders to The East Liverpool Review Pattern Department, 243 West 17th Street, New York City.

POLICEMAN FINDS DOG

CHICAGO — When Policeman John Greer lost his dog "Sandy" he advertised he'd pay a reward for "Sandy's" return.

There were 200 replies but Sandy was not among the dogs offered.

Hence Policeman Greer decided to do his own looking and he found Sandy in a butcher shop—the fifth one he investigated.

EAST END PLAY SET FOR MAR. 25

Three-act Performance Will Feature Second Presbyterian "Every Member" Canvass.

A three-act play, entitled "Have We Gone Crazy," will be presented by the congregation in the Second Presbyterian church in Virginia avenue, East End, Sunday night, March 25, in conjunction with the annual "every member" canvass which will be conducted at that time.

The play, which will include a cast of 15 characters, will feature a program to be directed by Lundy Price. The participants will be chosen and rehearsals started within a few days, it was said.

The "every member" canvass, plans for which were outlined at a recent meeting of the official board, will be under the direction of the trustees and other church executives.

EAST END WOMAN HURT IN FALL

Mrs. Frank McDaniel Suffers Fractured Leg After Slipping on Ice Near Home.

Mrs. Frank McDaniel of First avenue, East End, is recovering at her home today from a fractured right leg received Sunday when she slipped and fell on the ice in Fire alley, near her home. She was assisted to her home by passersby where she was attended by a physician. It was believed the bone had been fractured in two places.

East End Streets Are Cleared For Traffic

Street department aids today continued to clear the snow and spread cinders on East End streets which have become drifted. Many traffic tie-ups have occurred and several near accidents resulted when the automobiles skidded. Cinders have been placed on the "hill road" section of Pennsylvania avenue where many motor cars have experienced difficulty in ascending the grade. Street car service was delayed numerous times when automobiles became stalled on the tracks.

Rev. Callen May Close Ohioville Meet Friday

Rev. C. B. Callen, pastor of the Oakland Free Methodist church, who has been conducting evangelistic services at the Ohioville, Pa. Free Methodist church, expects to conclude his sermon series there Friday night, unless increased interest should warrant the extension of the meetings another week. In all probability they will be closed Sunday night, by the pastor there, it was intimated.

Meetings are being held each night this week in the Boyce Methodist Episcopal church of Klondyke. Visiting pastors are assisting in the campaign.

St. Ann's Lenten Card Party Tonight at 8

Other East Liverpool district pastors will also assist Rev. David Nelson in conducting the campaign.

LICENSE CUT DUE APRIL 1

Auto Plates to be Reduced After First Quarter.

By The Associated Press.

COLUMBUS, O., Feb. 27.

Spring is just around the corner. The annual letters seeking information about the first day that automobile licenses can be obtained at reduced prices, are pouring into the state bureau of motor vehicles indicating that spring is near.

Glen M. Daily, registrar, however, was given a hard job in answering a few of them because Easter Sunday falls on the first day for the reduced rates and therefore the public loses just one day.

One letter called attention to the early Easter date, and urged that surely the state would be willing to accept applications a few days early so that persons could use their cars for the first time in 1934 on Easter.

Daily's answer however was written into the general code. It was "No."

The law provides a 25-per cent reduction at the end of each quarter.

Records of the bureau indicate that thousands of motorists put their automobiles away during the winter months and leave them until spring arrives. The delay of requests for license information has been received ever since the quarterly reduction act was passed by the legislature several years ago. Prior to that time the full fee was collected throughout the entire year.

East Liverpool... Wellsville... Chester... Newell

A new club was organized Monday night at the home of Mrs. E. R. Chandler, Virginia avenue, Chester, which will be known as the Chester Junior Woman's club and is sponsored by the members of the Original Chester Woman's club. Twenty-one charter members were present and the following officers were elected: President, Miss Helen Young; Vice-president, Miss Rachel Boyce; recording secretary, Mrs. Harry F. Hobbs; corresponding secretary, Mrs. Paul R. Johnston; treasurer, Mrs. Carl Schleiter; chairman of the program committee, Mrs. J. G. Miller, and chairman of the constitution committee, Miss Mary Coughlin.

The club will meet every other Monday and the next meeting will be held Monday, March 12, at the home of Miss Matilda Rutledge, Phoenix avenue, Chester.

Amelia circle, Ladies' Aid society, of the Orchard Grove avenue Methodist Episcopal church will conduct a roast beef dinner Wednesday night between the hours of 5 and 7 o'clock in the basement of the church. Mrs. Edward Dunlap's circle will be in charge of the serving.

The monthly meeting of the Woman's Missionary society of the Nazarene church was held Monday night in the church with Mrs. O. L. Benedum leader. A short business session was in charge of Mrs. Frank Poland, president, during which the dues were collected by the treasurer, Miss Marie Wolfe, and the secretary, Mrs. James Biss, gave her report.

The following program was presented: Opening song, "Ready To Go," assembly; prayers, Mrs. Emma Furbin and Miss Fern Stewart; reading of the fifteenth chapter of John, Mrs. Frank Poland; reading, "A Midnight Attack," Miss Fern Stewart; vocal solo, "That Beautiful Garden of Prayer," Miss Jean Morrow, accompanied by Mrs. Edgar Pepper; reading, "Revival Fires in Africa," Mrs. James Biss; review of Dr. Chapman's book, "Thirty Thousand Mile Trip," Mrs. Edgar Pepper; vocal solo, "No Cross Could Be Like His," Mrs. Alberta Brindley, and closing prayer, Miss Marie Wolfe.

The next meeting will be held April 2.

Honoring Mrs. Howard Mellon, a recent bride, Mrs. Austin McCoy entertained a group of friends recently at her home in Jackson street. Informal social hours were spent with cards, after which the honor guest was presented with a miscellaneous shower.

Refreshments were served by Mrs. McCoy, assisted by Mrs. William Morris. Covers were arranged for Misses Eva Ross, Vada Vaughn, Ann Stover, Dora Miller, Ethel Richards, Vera Knott, Olive Rought, Betty McNeil, Beatrice Langer, Rose Peterson, Opal Hach, and Valerie McKinnon, and Mrs. William Morris.

Mrs. Mildred Hass of Midland, Pa., entertained members of her bridge club Monday night at the home of Mrs. Wilbur Alken, Ambrose avenue. Three tables of bridge were in play, trophies being awarded Miss Margaret McDole and Mrs. P. M. Akers.

The next meeting will be held March 12 at the home of Miss Martha Green, East Eighth street.

Circle 1 of St. Stephen's Episcopal church held a business session Monday night in the parish house with Mrs. Laura McMillan in charge. Eleven members responded to roll call.

Another business session will be held Monday, March 5, after which refreshments will be served by Mesdames Margaret Eggleston and Geraldine Gattrell.

Fourteen members of the Forget-Me-Not club were entertained Monday night in the home of Mrs. Gladys Thompson, Cleveland avenue. Rook was the diversion of the social hours, after which a short business session was conducted by the president, Mrs. May See.

Refreshments were served by

CALLS ALL-BRAN NATIONAL NATURAL LAXATIVE

Delicious Cereal Checked His Constipation

Here is an unsolicited letter from Mr. Daniels:

"For many years I have been habitually constipated, and have used all sorts of laxatives. So, in fairness to Kellogg's ALL-BRAN, I heartily claim it to be a most wonderful remedy for constipation.

"Need I tell you that I have long since ceased using laxatives? Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is the National Natural Laxative. If it were used by every family in the United States for breakfast, we would have a much healthier race of people."—Mr. John Daniels, 1090 Third St., North Bergen, N. J.

Tests show Kellogg's ALL-BRAN furnishes "bulk" to exercise the intestines and vitamin B to help tone the intestinal tract. ALL-BRAN also supplies iron for the blood.

The "bulk" in ALL-BRAN is much like that in leafy vegetables. Isn't this food much pleasanter than risking pills and drugs? Two tablespoonfuls daily are usually sufficient. If not relieved this way, see your doctor.

Get the red-and-green package at your grocer's. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

ARSON SUSPECTS LEAVE GERMANY

Three Bulgarians, Acquitted in Berlin Case, Depart for Moscow in Plane Early Today.

By LOUIS P. LOCHNER.

Associated Press Foreign Staff. BERLIN, Feb. 27.—The three Bulgarians acquitted in the Reichstag arson trial and since held in "protective custody," although granted Russian citizenship, were released today and departed by plane for Moscow.

A man who witnessed their departure, said the three—George Dimitroff, Wassil Taneff and Blagol Popoff—left at 7 a. m.

The informant, who claimed he would lose his job if his name became known, said the Prussian secret service, in whose custody the Russo-Bulgarians are, suddenly issued a requisition for a regular plane for Koenigsberg.

"Three regular passengers who were booked to fly had to yield their seats. Dimitroff, Popoff and Taneff then took their places."

10 SNOW PLOWS CLEAR HIGHWAYS

State Highway Department, County Equipment Remove Obstructions From Roads in County.

Eight snow plows have been steadily employed by the Lisbon division of the state highway department in keeping improved highways opened to traffic as a result of the heavy snow. County Surveyor Lloyd C. Kirk also has two plows on the roads. These plows have had to constantly travel the roads for the reason that after traffic lanes were opened, high winds blew snow back on the highways.

The state highway department declared that between nine and 10 inches of snow covered concrete highways, this being the deepest snows removed in a decade from roads in this county.

SHUDDERS AT BANQUET

CHICAGO — Every time Col. George Gaw thinks of a banquet he shudders.

Up until the time an explosion of a tear gas gun injured one of his hands, he was the city's official greeter, but now he has time for reflection.

"I spoke," he said, "at an average of four banquets a night, but never had enough time to join the banqueters. I had to eat hot dogs between calls."

DISTRICT QUINTS PREP FOR TOURNAMENTS

3 Teams Perform Tonight

East Palestine, Salem
Play at Youngstown Event.

By ROBERT ELLIOTT,
Sports Editor, The Review.

Nine of the East Liverpool district's 14 high school basketball teams today started preparations for sectional tournaments this week, while a 10th club—Midland—winds up its regular season tonight at New Brighton. "Rusty" Leonard's Midland quint is through for the year following tonight's clash.

Four district quintets—Fairfield Centralized, New Waterford, Salineville and Leontia—finished up last week when they were eliminated from the county "B" tournament, won by Columbiana.

Play Tonight.

East Palestine and Salem are the first district teams to make their debut in 1934 tournament competition. They both see action tonight in the Northeastern Ohio sectional event on the Youngstown East high school floor.

East Palestine is paired against the tough Youngstown Rayen quintet and is expected to lose. Salem tangles with Youngstown East and is a top-heavy favorite to down the club that dropped a 30-14 decision to East Liverpool here Saturday night.

Lisbon, which also plays in the Youngstown sectional, does not face Newton Falls. Phil Bie's quint is given a fairly good chance of winning over the Falls cagers.

Locals at Steubenville

East Liverpool and Wellsville, both favorites in the pre-tournament, start their tournament competition on Friday afternoon at the Grant junior high in Steubenville.

The Potters tangle with Minero at 3:30 p. m. and if victorious, will face Bellaire on Friday night. The Dixons are heavy favorites to snatch both frays.

Wellsville opens the Steubenville sectional at 2:30 p. m. Friday against Bridgeport. If the Bengals win this game, they play again Friday night against Carrollton. The Bengals are expected to finish in front in both frays.

Chester and New Cumberland are preparing for the Brook-Hancock county sectional event to be held Friday and Saturday on the Wellsburg high floor. Chester faces Weirton in its first game, while New Cumberland takes on Follinsbee.

"B" Champs Play
Columbiana high, Class "B" champs of the county, will journey to McDonald this week for the sectional eliminations.

Irontale high's strong quintet takes part in the sectional tournament at Dover this week. The Irons lost in the finals of the Jefferson county "B" tonney at Steubenville Saturday night, dropping a 16-15 contest to Amsterdam, but qualified for the sectional play despite the loss.

Bearcats Trim Miami Combine

Victory Assures Tie For Second with Marshall.

By The Associated Press.
The University of Cincinnati and Marshall college of Huntington, W. Va., will share second place honors in the Buckeye conference basketball race.

This was assured last night when Cincinnati defeated Miami, 43 to 33, in an exciting game. The Bearcats' star center, Carl Austin, scored 12 points against the Redskins and ran his season's total to 126, giving him high individual honors in the conference.

Robbins, tall center for Denison, was the whole show in a game with Marikunum. He scored 20 points to enable his team to down the Muskies, 23 to 21.

A scheduled game between Rio Grande and Wilmington was cancelled. On tonight's schedule of the waning hardwood season are Capital vs. Ohio Northern, Baldwin-Wallace vs. Hiram, Heidelberg vs. Akron, Bowling Green vs. Toledo, Indiana Tech vs. Defiance, Bluffton vs. Findlay, and Franklin vs. Ohio College of Chiropractic.

McGRAW GOT EARLY START IN ORGANIZED BASEBALL

John McGraw, who was to become baseball's most glamorous and in many ways most successful figure, got an early start in the game that brought him fame. On his 17th birthday he started playing in organized baseball in the New York-Pennsylvania loop, two years later he was in the National league, with Baltimore, and by the time he was 29 had started his 30-year managerial career at the helm of the New York Giants.

Once in the big show McGraw started building New York from a "joke" baseball town to the best baseball city the nation. His aggressiveness and truculence made him a colorful figure and his team acquired, in part, his brusque, brilliant personality.

A severe taskmaster, McGraw was particularly "rough" on players who were inclined to be too mechanical and those who did not "use their heads." However, for all his brusqueness and keenness to win, McGraw was known to intimates as a truly generous, warm-hearted soul.

Even with his scorn for the inept and mentally dull Mac could force tried and tested members of his teams for momentary lapses. Evidence of this is found in his ready forgiveness of Fred Merkle, whose famous failure to touch second base cost the Giants the 1903 championship, and his remission of Fred Snodgrass after the latter's miff of a fly ball lost the 1912 series. This latter loss, incidentally, was one of the bitterest blows to McGraw, for it came at the end of the great Christy Mathewson's career with the Giants.

White Sox Upset Senators in "Y" League Tournament, 35-30

Browns Put Tigers Out of Running with 28-22 Victory; Buckley Scoring Star.

The tournament to decide the second half winner of the Y. M. C. A. Senior basketball league got under way Monday night with one mild upset and another reversal of form that was anything but expected.

In one game the White Sox, defeated in seven straight games during the first half, eliminated the Senators, 35-30. The Senators are the first half champions, but were outclassed by the Sox last night. The Browns put the Tigers out of the running for the second half crown, 28-22.

The Brown-Tiger battle was close for three quarters. The Browns led 11-2 at the end of the first period, but were in front only 16-15 at half-time. The Browns led 22-22 at the three-quarter mark.

Buckley led the Brown attack with five field goals and six fouls, with Massey tossing in four baskets. Winter's four fielders and one free throw topped the Tiger attack.

The White Sox led the Senators 11-7 at the half, after they had trailed 4-3 at the end of the first period. The Sox lead mounted to 25-18 at the end of the third quarter. The Senators cut into the Sox margin in the last period, but could not close the gap.

Most led the scorers with 14 points. Edwards topped the Senator point-getters with three field goals and two free throws.

McGraw Residence Is Opened

Fans Throng Home to Pay Respects to Leader.

BY HUGH S. FULLERTON JR.,
Associated Press Sports Writer.
NEW YORK, Feb. 27.—The admiration and respect which baseball fans felt for John J. McGraw today opened the doors of his home in Pelham Manor, to them.

All day the ordinary fans who followed the fortunes of the New York Giants during the 30 years of the "Little Napoleon" managed the club, the older ones who knew or saw him as a player, and the youngsters to whom McGraw was little more than a tradition out of baseball's past, were allowed to pay their last respects to the dead leader.

At first reluctant to admit the general public, Mrs. McGraw altered her decision. Previously only McGraw's close friends and associates had been admitted to the house.

More than 60 names, most of them well known in baseball, on the sago and in New York official life were placed on the list of honorary pallbearers, for the funeral tomorrow. Among them were William H. Terry, McGraw's pupil, who succeeded him as manager of the Giants in 1932, representatives of all the National league clubs and of the league, George M. Cohan, Sam Harris and De Wolf Hopper, close friends of McGraw, representing the stage and the Lambs club, John McCormick, the Irish tenor, and Edward P. Mulrooney, former New York police commissioner.

The services will be held at 10 a. m. tomorrow at St. Patrick's Cathedral. After the funeral his body will be taken to Baltimore where it will be placed in a vault to await burial.

"SAX" PLAYERS NOT ALL INSANE

By International News Service.
DENVER — Playing the saxophone is not necessarily a sign of insanity—at least not to District Judge Charles C. Sackmann's court.

A group of attorneys were in Judge Sackmann's chambers discussing a point of law out of hearing of the jury. The discussion had to do with insanity. One of the lawyers mentioned the case of a criminal who had been adjudged insane, and later became a saxophone player in the Colorado penitentiary band.

"If he took up saxophone playing he must have been insane," another attorney commented. "Eradem," the judge interrupted at this point. "I'll have you gentlemen know that I am a very good saxophone player."

Cheyenne's Big Dog Roundup Is Failure

CHEYENNE, Wyo.—T. Joe Cahill's big "dog roundup" undertaken in an attempt to eliminate useless and homeless hounds from the streets of Cheyenne, ended with just one sick dog in the pound. After 87 canines had been gathered in seven days, someone left the door open and Willie Jackson and Homer Fraser, whom Cahill, as chief of police, had appointed to ride herd on the dogs, reported all but the ailing cur tied.

Mrs. McGraw Played Part in Success of New York Giants

Shared Husband's Worries When Team Hit Long Losing Streak; Took Part in Plans.

By ROBERT J. CAVAGNARO,
Associated Press Sports Writer.
NEW YORK, Feb. 27.—A few days ago Mrs. Blanche Sindall McGraw was known as just the wife of baseball's most picturesque character.

Today intimate friends revealed that she, unknown to the public in general and the sporting public in particular, played an important role in his management of the New York Giants for 30 years.

Edward T. Branick, assistant secretary of the club, who looked upon McGraw as a father, spoke feelingly of the couple's private life.

"They were a devoted and lovable pair," Branick said. "Mrs. McGraw was his best companion."

When the team struck a losing streak John would become blue. She was the only one able to console him.

Often he discussed baseball strategy with her and he listened carefully to her criticism. "It was to her McGraw spoke his last words."

Frank Belcher, who palled with him for 40 years, wept as he told of the death bed scene. Mrs. McGraw, he said, was standing at her husband's bedside. She was sobbing audibly.

Calling on his rapidly waning vitality, McGraw roused himself and asked: "Why are you crying, Blanche?" "Oh, John, I'm crying because I'm so happy you're getting well," she said, then leaned over and kissed him.

"You know I'll be out of here tomorrow," he said, and added: "Blanche, I love you dearer than anything else."

Then he closed his eyes and a few minutes later lapsed into the coma from which he failed to rally and did not speak again.

Irondale Girls Drop 20-13 Tilt

Amsterdam Captures Playoff for Loop Title.

Irondale high school's girls' basketball team dropped a 20-13 decision to Amsterdam on the Winterville high floor Monday night. The two teams tied for first place in the Buckeye league, which concluded its season two weeks ago.

Irondale trailed only 10-8 at the half, but folded up under Amsterdam's last half drive. Olesky, Irondale forward, led both teams in scoring with four field goals and four fouls for 12 points. Kirkland's 10 markers paced Amsterdam.

Irish Foreign Trade Suffers Big Decrease

DUBLIN—Foreign trade of the Irish Free State registered a 25 per cent decline in value in the January-November period of 1933 compared with the corresponding period of 1932, according to a report from Vice Consul E. J. King at Dublin. Imports for the eleven months ended November 30, 1933, totaled £23,959,690, against £40,934,935 during January-November period of 1932. Exports were valued at £17,460,255 compared with £22,946,773 during the January-November 1932 period.

Gate of $75,000 Expected

Fans Fail to Show Interest In Title Tiff.

By EDWARD J. NEIL,
Associated Press Sports Writer.

MIAMI, Fla., Feb. 27.—The artistic success of Primo Carnera's heavyweight title defense against Tommy Loughran amid a background of palms seems assured, regardless of the outcome, but from a financial standpoint the receipts tomorrow night probably will fade all the way back to the low records of boxing's dark ages.

As the huge champion from Italy and Loughran, his veteran challenger, were content today with light exercises and rest, the training campaign over, it became apparent from lack of interest that the match will not draw more than $75,000.

Not since Tex Rickard came out of the far west years ago to set new records for fight receipts, has the heavyweight championship fight business fallen to such low marks.

Since that far gone day heavyweight championships grew to be synonymous with millions. At the height of Rickard's career—and the boom days—Jack Dempsey and Gene Tunney drew $1,895,733 in their first match in Philadelphia in 1926, and the top gate of all boxing, $2,658,660 for their return match in Chicago the next year. Carnera, the present champion, is formally in bankruptcy.

Despite the fact that Miami is jammed with visitors, the sun is shining, and Loughran has increased his status as a challenger considerably by his show of condition and ability in training, tickets have sold slowly. It would take an amazing run on the box office to bring the gate up to $100,000.

Judges Named

Odds on Carnera to retain his championship, perhaps by an early knockout, still hold at 3 to 1, and a few wagers have been made with the titleholder a favorite as high as 5 to 1, a situation which has the veterans shaking their heads and analyzing sharply the chances of a 185-pound Loughran beating a 258 pound Carnera.

As the athletes finished hard-training yesterday, the Miami boxing commission named Colin McLochlan, and Roy Latham to judge the fight with Leo Shea previously appointed referee. The match is scheduled for 10 p. m. (E. S. T.) and will not be broadcast.

NEW BUCKNELL COACH NAMED

By The Associated Press.
LEWISBURG, Pa., Feb. 27.—E. E. (Hooks) Mylin, a veteran of eleven years' coaching at Lebanon valley college, is the new football coach of Bucknell university. Mylin succeeds Carl Snavely, who went to the University of North Carolina.

The new coach is a graduate of Franklin and Marshall college. Mylin also will have charge of baseball.

Review to Select All-County Teams

The Review's annual All-Columbiana county basketball teams will be published on Wednesday. The selections—a first and second team will be picked—will represent the opinion of coaches and sports writers throughout the county.

Players will be chosen from the East Liverpool, Wellsville, East Palestine, Lisbon and Salem quintets.

Artists Suffer Defeat

Scher Tailors Win Girls Battle Here, 17-13.

The Laughlin Artists suffered surprise defeat at the local high school gym Monday night when the Youngstown Scher Tailors copped a 17-13 decision. The Artists had previously defeated the Tailors at Youngstown without a great deal of difficulty.

The Laughlin Ex-Highs, composed of former East Liverpool high school stars, also were defeated last night, suffering a 37-19 setback at the hands of the Jack Wallace Butler Boys of the West Penn league. Withrow and Unger paced the Ex-High attack with six points apiece, the former dumping in three fielders and the latter two buckets and two fouls.

Three girls did all the scoring for the Artists. Ora Feldkamp, settling the pace with two field goals and a pair of free throws. Koma duplicated her scoring to set the pace for the Tailors.

Back in Your Own Back Yard - Baby Chicks Take Real Cash Out of the Ground

COUNTY TO CUT 180 CWA MEN

Road Projects Hit, City Hall, Stadium Pushed.

One hundred and eighty Columbiana county CWA workers will be dismissed on Friday under a state order received today by CWA Administrator E. M. Lowry at Lisbon, to slash the county's quota on state and county projects from 2,054 to 1,874 by March 2.

The state CWA at the same time announced a new wage scale for the remaining 168,500 workers in Ohio, including Columbiana county. The old rate for skilled workers was a maximum of $1.20 an hour, and the minimum for various types of semi-skilled workers ranged from 65 cents to $1 an hour, while the minimum for common labor was 50 cents an hour.

The new schedule of wages by groups for Columbiana county follows: Group 1, skilled workers of some 75 classifications, $1.00; group 2, 3 and 4, semi-skilled workers of more than 50 classifications, 75, 65 and 55 cents; group 5, common labor, 40 cents.

Lowry said most of the men to lose their jobs will be taken from road projects. "We are going to concentrate on the city hall and stadium in East Liverpool, the courthouse in Lisbon and the Guilford lake work," Lowry said.

Lowry also said that, effective March 2, wages paid CWA employees, will be the prevailing rate for the work in each local community. The wages, however, are not to be less than 30 cents an hour.

PARTY LEADERS TO BE NEUTRAL

Roosevelt Democrats Declare for "Hands Off" Policy in Coming Primary Election.

By The Associated Press. WASHINGTON, Feb. 27.—Roosevelt Democrats declared a "hands-off" policy today with regard to Democratic candidates in the coming primary elections.

James A. Farley, as chairman in a statement said the national committee would take no part for or against any Democratic candidate. The statement, however, was understood not to apply to Progressive Republicans known to have the approval of the administration, such as Senator Johnson of California and Senator Norris of Nebraska.

"In view of the approaching primaries in many states," it read, "it is only fair that it be thoroughly understood at this time that the Democratic national committee is not taking part either for or against any Democratic candidate in a senate, congressional, state or municipal campaign."

MONTOUR FIGHT TO BE RENEWED

Pittsburgh Coal Co. Prepares to Carry Creek Dredging Row to High Court.

A fight against an injunction preventing dredging or blasting of little Beaver creek will be carried to the Pennsylvania supreme court, if necessary, attorneys for the Pittsburgh Coal company said today.

A temporary injunction granted to the Columbus & Pittsburgh railroad was made permanent at Beaver, Pa., Monday. Deepening of the channel is part of the Montour railroad project for rail-and-water handling of coal.

The court's order, however, will not affect the Montour program, attorneys said.

7 Die, 40 Hurt In Train Wreck

The porter was making up the berth when a sudden crash came from the rear of the train. The crash followed. Everybody in the back of the car was thrown forward, with bags and luggage crashing on top of us.

"At first there was a bedlam of screams and groans. Then some man called out in a calm voice. He told us to be quiet.

"We were panicky because we feared we would be burned to death. The man went on telling us to crawl back to some place where we wouldn't be on top of somebody else and to be quiet. That calmed us and we waited."

Upper Berths Crash Down
Firemen and policemen reached them with difficulty, wading through six-inch snow and breaking the windows to enter the wrecked cars.

J. S. Stevens, of Akron, said he "had a feeling just before the train crashed that it buckled." He thought they had hit an automobile.

William Ortleib, a patrolman, among the first rescuers to reach the wreck said:

"All I could hear were screams and groans. I climbed in and handed out five or six persons. By the sounds I thought at least 25 were dying."

township, and six below at Lock No. 8 on the Ohio river, marking the seventh day this month that the thermometer has fallen below zero. The coldest day of the winter was reported at Fredericktown, where the mercury reached 17 below at 6:30 a. m.

Unofficial readings in the district included 10 below at the Diamond, on Northside and at the Chester bridge, and 12 below in East End and Hookstown. Traffic automobile and street car traffic had returned to nearly normal, city street employees were still working early today, clearing intersections and hauling away snow.

Halt Montgomery Island Work
Wickets at Locks No. 5 and 6 in the Ohio river were lowered early today in an unsuccessful effort to cause the 15-mile gorge between Newell and Industry to move out. The stage at Lock No. 8 raised to 8.2 feet but the ice held fast. The gorge is now said to be the worst on the river.

The ice and low water in the river, combined with sub-zero temperatures, have halted all concrete work on the Montgomery island dam, near Industry. About 12,000 cubic yards of concrete are needed to complete the locks.

BLOND GODDESS

A New Serial by Herbert Jensen

SYNOPSIS: Frank Grahame, aviator and explorer, tells his friend, Spin Winslow, about his experiences of the day before. Frank, obeying a hunch that came when he saw a vulturing face peering through the window of Myberg's office, followed the car of Janice Kent, who had been conferring with the famous movie executive. Frank straightened out the tangle that followed a collision between Miss Kent's car and a nondescript tan motor; he believes the collision was planned, and suspects it has a connection with Ortega, a Mexican who plans to supervise a jungle picture for Myberg. But Janice will not credit Frank's hunch. Frank finds himself drawn toward Janice.

Chapter Six
SUDDEN MYSTERY
"Then," continued Grahame, "Miss Kent told me that such a thought was ridiculous since Ortega owned a nice automobile." He smiled ruefully. "Her opinion was illogical, feminine and—"
Winslow laughed. "Not at all, Frank. The girl was right. Look here. . . Ortega hasn't shopped his idea about Hollywood. It's an original, and Myberg's handling him with kid gloves until we've launched on production. Kent knows that. She wants to be in that picture. So do I."
"Although Ortega looks like a bull, he is really a rather personable fellow, and seems to have lots of money. We can't be snooty with him or he'll take his idea elsewhere. Sure we could go ahead without him, but he's got a political pull down where he springs from, and above all we want to go ahead with this thing with as little expense and competition as possible. These days, mistakes are costly."

"I see what you mean," said Grahame slowly. "But why would Ortega, assuming it was he in the tan car last night, engineer an accident? Is he annoying Miss Kent? Did she turn him down and he is taking this method to—"
"Listen, Spin, some of those South American birds are dynamite. Particularly with women. You know how they go for blonds. That driver I hit was one of our local boys. A type that would do anything for money, and Grahame looks like if I found him in my soup but—"

Winslow's short of derision interrupted him. What an imagination! You're led such a melodramatic life these last few years that your mind works that way. Forget it. It wasn't Ortega, and if it was, it was just an unexpected accident. Sure,

"She has lots of money and made it herself, legitimately. It's common knowledge around the studios that she was poor once and she's keeping what she's got—"
"Spin—" Grahame's face grew dully red.
The other, in the act of mixing himself another wave of silence. "It isn't that you would be classified in her mind as a fortune hunter. Frank, there's lots that would. Yes, of course, I'm talking too much, but we were good friends once and I'm tipping you off even if it's at the price of our friendship." The stunt puller's mouth drew into stubborn lines.
"Listen. It's said there was an invalid father once. He's gone now, but things were pretty tough then for her. She's like the little princess in the story whose body was bruised by the pea through six thicknesses of mattresses. Janice Kent can sense a pan of dishwater and the life it represents six rooms off. It's not that she's cold and selfish, it's—"
Grahame's throat was a little dry as he said, "Selfish? She's fine. Clean, and young and charming. She inspires loyalty. I watched that little monkey Green with her last night. He's her slave and works like the devil for her. His ballyhoo smells like the circus, but—"
"She loves it. And as for loyalty, they say she pays him ten thousand a year, although he probably gets half of that."

"He gets his ten thousand all right," stated Grahame stiffly. "She told me so herself."
"Bunk," said Winslow, swallowing from his glass.
Grahame eyed him coldly. "You wouldn't think she'd lie to me, do you?"
"Wouldn't I?" The stunt man laughed and Grahame wondered why he had never before noticed how disagreeable Winslow could laugh.
"Frank . . . you sound as if you're getting it rather bad. Don't do it. That gal, candidly, is reputed to be the coldest piece of goods that ever dimpled at the Kleigs out here. She'd cold-deck her own grandmother. Selfish? Perhaps not in a general sense. But on the lot—remember I say 'on the lot'—she'd swipe a starving extra's lunch if she didn't get hers on time. She—"
At the look on Grahame's face he paused and took a swallow of his drink. "Now don't get redheaded about it, buzzard. I told you, this is just a friendly tip." The remaining contents of his glass gurgled down his throat. Lee tinkled through the quiet room as he sat down the glass. He glanced oddly at Grahame.
"Sorry, old man. Maybe I don't like blonds, I guess. That's all. Got to be going. See you later."

As the paneled door shut behind him, Grahame caught sight of the reflection of his own grim face in the varnished surface. Anger boiled suddenly within him. Winslow didn't like blonds, he guessed! The fool! What a lousy way to talk about a girl.
Winslow's cynicism had crystallized some of his own emotional responses toward Janice Kent. Why, she was the sweetest, dearest, most beautiful—Fifty million fans couldn't be wrong could they? or for any other man for that matter, for at least some time to come. Too ambitious. Not that she's to be blamed for that. She's fought her way to the top around here and she's cagey enough to know that a husband might dim that universal sweetheart appeal stuff that gets her over so big. So she's not having any, thank you.

"I see what you mean," said Grahame slowly. "But why would Ortega, assuming it was he in the tan car last night, engineer an accident? Is he annoying Miss Kent? Did she turn him down and he is taking this method to—"

Grahame was slightly startled. "Why—" he began.
His companion grinned with mock maliciousness but withal there was an expression of concern in his eyes.
"Perhaps I'm a great guy to talk too much, Frank . . . anyhow that's my reputation, but occasionally I speak with a grain of common sense. That girl is not for you.

Bear in mind that asthma is a serious disease and must never be neglected. Continued attacks place too great a burden on the heart and lungs. In many an unrelieved case the sufferer becomes stricken with a diseased heart and if proper measures are not taken, this may prove to be exceedingly serious. In addition, the general health of the individual is undermined and he becomes more susceptible to the various infectious diseases.

CUPID talks it over with Lupe Velez

CUPID: "Lupe, how do you win hearts before I even have a chance at them? Is that nice—interfering with my work?"
LUPE: "I do not steal your job, Cupid. I do nothing."
CUPID: "Maybe if you'd stop using Lux Toilet Soap I'd have more work to do! But while you have such devastating skin . . ."
LUPE: "I stop using Lux Toilet Soap—the soap that does so much for my skin? Never!"
CUPID: "Girls all over the country have decided that the soap you use works for them, too, Lupe."
LUPE: "Then romance will come to them. And pretty soon you will have no more job, my little Cupid!"

Your Health
By Dr. R. S. Copeland.

Tomorrow Janice injects a note of mystery into the tangle.

There is a popular belief that asthma is an incurable affliction. This it is not the fact, but undoubtedly it has led many sufferers from this affliction to give up all hope of complete recovery. It is true, too, that for many years little was known concerning this disease and little could be offered in the way of cure.

I am glad to say that only recently, important discoveries have been made in the prevention as well as cure of this annoying and really disabling disorder. In fact, many victims of asthma have been entirely cured and others have been greatly relieved from the sufferings of repeated attacks and the severity of the spasms.

This has all been made possible by the development of the so-called "sensitivity tests". Certain types of asthma are caused by sensitivity to a pollen, food substance or clothing. In such cases when the exciting cause is discovered and removed, cure is possible.

Find Offending Substance.
By means of these sensitivity tests, it is possible to determine just what particular substance it is to which the sufferer is sensitive. When this is found and the offending substance can be removed, cure is effected. In some instances success has been attained by the use of a vaccine made from the irritating substance. It acts by doing away with or lessening the sensitivity.

Within recent years many cases of asthma have been traced to sources of infection within the body. For examples, diseased and infected nasal sinuses, tonsils, adenoids, appendix or gall bladder may be the underlying cause of the symptoms and when removed relief is obtained.

Strain on the Heart.
Every sufferer from asthma should have a complete physical examination. This will reveal any physical defects and locate the points of infection. The examination is not complete unless it includes a test of the urine, blood, sputum and an X-ray of the lungs. Then the sensitivity tests should
